Vienna, Nov. 7. The Imperial Army is ſeparated, and Prince Eugene is expected here on the 9th or 10th Inſtant. General Mercy is to march with 12 Regiments of Horſe and 12 Battallions, to poſſeſs himſelf of Panzova, Vipalanca, and Orſava: And General Steinville, who is ordered with another Body towards Tranſylvania, is to ſupport him if Occaſion require. The reſt of the Troops are all to have their Winter-Quarters in Hungary, that they may be the nearer at hand for the enſuing Campaign; and 'tis reckoned Siege will be laid to Belgrade before May. The Turks propoſed a Suſpenſion of Arms, by an Imperial Courier whom they had detained ſome Time and ſent back hither a few Days ago; to which Anſwer was returned, that this Court would not hearken to any Offer of Peace or Truce with the Turks, before they had ſet at Liberty the Reſident M. Fleiſchman: But before this Anſwer reached them, they had actually diſmiſſed him, and he arrived at Peterwaradin on the 31ſt paſt; but we do not yet hear that the Turks have ſent any Propoſition by him. On the 4th Inſtant died here the Archduke Leopold, 6 Months and 22 Days old, to the great Grief of the Imperial Family and of all good Subjects.

Hambourg, Nov. 13. On the 10th Inſtant in the Afternoon, the Czar arrived at Lubeck; and at his Entrance was received with a triple Diſcharge of the Artillery on the Ramparts. His Czariſh Majeſty was accompanied by Prince Dolborouki, Felt-Marſhal Czeremetoff, and General Ween; the two latter arrived here Yeſterday, but will return to their Maſter to Morrow. The ſame Evening the Czar's Conſort likewiſe came to Lubeck.

Berlin, Nov. 14. On the 8th Inſtant Sir Richard Vernon, His Britannick Majeſty's Envoy Extraordinary to the King of Poland, arrived here from Gohr. Yeſterday M. Spearchen, Miniſter of the King of Great Britain as Elector of Hanover, had Audience of the King of Pruſſia at Wuſterhauſen, and will return to his Majeſty at Gohr to Morrow Morning. The Czar having ſtaid a Day or two at Lubeck, deſigned to be this Evening at Schwerin, to reſt there till the 17th, and to come on the 18th to Havelberg, a little Town on the Elbe, where he has agreed to have the Interview with the King of Pruſſia, who has ordered 200 Horſes to be ready at every Stage for him and his Retinue. His Pruſſian Majeſty will go directly thither from Wuſterhauſen on the 18th, and will take with him his three chief Miniſters for foreign Affairs, Count Denhof, M. Printz, and M. Ilgen: Count Golofkin, the Ruſſian Miniſter, and M. Manteuffel, the Poliſh Envoy, are likewiſe to go thither. If the Hereditary Prince of Wirtemberg ſhould arrive here before that Time, the King of Pruſſia will pay him a Viſit in his Way. His Pruſſian Majeſty has granted granted free Paſſage through his Territories for the Saxon Troops from Poland, which M. Manteuffel ſollicited by a Memorial ſome Days ago. The laſt Letters from Warſaw are of the 6th Inſtant; the general Act of Pacification was not then ſigned, but as each particular Article had been ſubſcribed by both Parties as ſoon as agreed, and all of any Conſequence were already adjuſted, it was looked upon to be as good as finiſhed. General Bauer, with his ſix Regiments of Muſcovite Dragoons, is arrived in Great Poland.

From on board His Majeſty's Ship the Cumberland, in the Road at Copenhagen, Nov. 14. On the 28th of laſt Month Sir John Norris, with the Britiſh Squadron under his Command, and the Daniſh Men of War commanded by Count Guldenlew, arrived at Bornholm; on which Day the two Cruiſers which Sir John Norris had ſent to Carlſcrona, returned to him, with an Account, that they had ſeen the Swediſh Fleet with two Flags and ſeven broad Pendants in Carlſcrona, and all the Ships they could diſcover lay rigged; as alſo, that they had three Cruiſers under Sail off the Port. That Night Sir John Norris ſent thoſe two Cruiſers, being the beſt Sailers of his Squadron, to Dantzick to haſten the Trade down the Baltick, and if they found the ſix Britiſh Men of War and all the Merchant Men had joined there, to order the Commadore not to loſe a Moment that could be made uſe of for ſailing, but to proceed. Thoſe Cruiſers arrived at Dantzick on the 30th, where they found the Britiſh Men of War and the Trade; which on the 31ſt all ſailed from Dantzick with a fair Wind at S. S. E. but it veering to the Weſtward, they anchored that Day without the Heel, in order to take the firſt Opportunity of Wind. The Cruiſers came on, and on the 3d Inſtant one of them arrived at Bornholm. On the 9th the Britiſh Men of War with the Trade joined Sir John Norris's Squadron at Bornholm, (having ſailed from the Heel of Dantzick on the 4th of this Month,) and the next Day came all with him into the Road of Copenhagen. On the 12th arrived the Dutch Trade with their Convoy, which had been obliged to ſtay after ours at Dantzick for Proviſions. All the Merchant-Men will be cleared by to Morrow at Elſeneur; and Sir John Norris will take the firſt Opportunity of Wind to ſail for Great Britain.
